

BEAUTIFUL BASTION POINT, MALLACOOTA

This jewel of Victoria's wilderness coast will become buried treasure if a 130 metre breakwater and road on the beach is allowed to go ahead.

The cost continues to blow out while the economic benefits have been grossly exaggerated - a money pit for Victoria taxpayers and a burden for East Gippsland ratepayers.

Political positions on the Bastion Point overdevelopment

Craig Ingram - has ignored community concerns and rejected low-key alternatives. He has lobbied both business associates and government to build it, and also attempted to stop the independent public hearings.

Labor - although the local candidate opposes the overdevelopment, Labor has so far supported it and promised funding prior to the required approval processes.

Liberal/ National Coalition - although the Liberal candidate opposes the overdevelopment, the Coalition has only committed to reviewing the project as part of the required approval processes.

Greens - support community efforts to stop this devastating development. The Greens support a community-based alternative for a low-impact upgrade at the existing site.

You can help stop this waste of public money and save Victoria's premier coastal wilderness destination.
